On Friday morning, after hauling a total of 9 loads of water (approximately 50,000 gallons total) from the facility, the POTW informed us that they did not want to take the stream any longer and that we would have to find a new outlet for this waste. The reason given was that it was not worth it to them.

Unfortunately, the timing on this decision could not have been much worse. I have a call in to the director to get more information and to see if there is anything that can be done to change things. Assuming that this is a final decision, we have started the process of contacting other POTWs as well as private facilities in order to determine what other options we have for the water and what are costs may be. I hope to have a new facility available within the next week, although it is unlikely that we will have one that is as close or as inexpensive, therefore, the costs to treat the water as well as the costs to haul it will be greater.

As I know more, I will update everyone. If anyone has any questions or thoughts, please contact me.
